

Iain Grant

I became a specialist in oncology after completing a residency at the University of California, Davis and the Ohio State University in 2007.

I have worked in both academia and private practice and am currently a lead clinician in medical oncology at Fitzpatrick Referrals Oncology and Soft Tissue Hospital in Guildford, UK. I am also a founder-director of Chemovet limited, a consultancy and pharmacy service supporting practitioners providing oncology care to their patients in practice.

I am a Diplomate of the American College of Veterinary Internal Medicine, and a registered specialist of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons. I am currently the Vice-President of ESVONC and I shall be seeking re-election this year.

In the role of Vice-President I will support decision making within the executive committee acting on behalf of our entire membership and in particular provide support to the president in all aspects of his or her appointment as required.

I will continue to act as lead in scientific activities of ESVONC, managing the abstract review process for the Annual ESVONC and ECVIM (European College of Veterinary Internal Medicine) Congresses. I am responsible for creating the scientific program which represents ESVONC at the ECVIM Congress each year. The focus remains on scientific progress in the fields of veterinary oncology and translational research. I shall continue to represent ESVONC on the ECVIM scientific committee.

Finally, I would like to work towards developing a greater understanding of compassion fatigue and burnout amongst individuals involved in veterinary oncology care. I am also interested in promoting the discipline of supportive care in the veterinary profession.
